

A baby Right Whale is called a calf. The calves stay very close to their mothers. People and boats should never go near a mother and her calf (even though they are cute)! What could happen if a boat got too close?

